BIG CELEBRATION ARMISTICE DAY

Berea and Richmond Legion
Posts Arrange Joint Program
At Smoker Here Tuesday

Plans for an elaborate celebration of Armistice Day, November 11th, were outlined at a smoker held jointly by members and officers of Jesse M. Dykes Post, of Richmond, and Cleveland Post, of Berea, of the American Legion, at the Kennadrich restaurant here Tuesday night.

An all day program is being arranged. The morning events will be held in Berea, where an address will be made by State Adjutant S. S. Jones and another speaker, who will be secured by President W. J. Hutchins, of Berea College. Members of Jesse M. Dykes Post will go to Berea in a body, headed by their band. Automobiles will be furnished for all members who will go up to the morning celebration.

In the afternoon all will come to Richmond, where there will be a band concert. There will be no speaking here, but a football game will be played at Normal campus in the afternoon. A team composed of members of the two Madison county posts is being formed and an outside eleven will be secured to play against the Madison team. There are some veteran gridiron stars among the members of the two posts and a good game should result. The game will be preceded by a big parade of the Legion boys.

Armistice Day will in probability be declared a half holiday here in Richmond when the ceremonies are held here, and a big crowd is expected to hear the band concert and see the football game. At Berea in the morning, the same conditions are expected to prevail, so that the day will be made a big one all day in Madison.

TRYING TO DEVELOP TAILLESS SHEEP

(By Associated Press)
Lexington, Ky., Oct. 19.—Experiments of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station to develop a breed of tailless sheep through a series of breeding experiments, were given a boost when it was announced here today that L. S. Johnstone, of Versailles, had donated a tailless ewe to the foundation stock of the new breed.

The station now has two tailless females from which to develop the proposed new breed, another ewe having been purchased some time ago. A tailless male which had been contracted for by the station died before it could be delivered.

The experiment already has been started, according to an announcement by L. J. Horlacher, station sheep specialist. Both ewes will be bred to a Southdown ram and enough tailless individuals are expected to result from this mating to permit the continuation of the experiment, Mr. Horlacher said.

The new addition to the foundation stock was sired by a blooded Southdown ram. Her mother was a common grade ewe.

Lincoln Lands Sells At $225

The Stanford Journal reports some good farm sales in that section. It says: R. G. Hampton has sold to J. W. Barnes, of Byrds town, Tenn., his farm on the Cut-off pike, containing 105 acres, for $23,625, or $225 per acre. Mr. Hampton took in the trade Mr. Barnes' 45-acre tract on the Otterheim pike for $6,825. Hughes and McCarty, the real estate men, made the deal.

Hughes and McCarty sold for Mrs. Mary Lightner her farm of 32 acres, top of Halls Gap, to J. L. Robbins, for $1,480. On Saturday they sold for Otis Florence 40 acres just south of the town limits, to James H. Wilder, at $183.25.

SAWYER SMITH NOW FEDERAL ATTORNEY

Sawyer A. Smith, of Barboursville, is now the District Attorney for the Eastern district of Kentucky and will conduct one of his first federal courts in Richmond in November. The Senate late Monday swept aside Senator Stanley's objections and confirmed him. Smith was at Washington when he was confirmed. He will proceed to Covington to take up his new duties. The records of the Senate show that District Attorney Thomas D. Shattery was removed.

SAM REID'S TEAM DEFEATS STANFORD HI

Sam Reid's Hustonville football team, which plays against Model High here Friday, surprised the Stanford boys by whipping them 9 to 0 the other day. Joe McFormery, a Normal athletic star, is principal of the Hustonville High School, and is coaching the team, too. The Stanford Journal's report of the game had this: Neither side was able to score in the first quarter but in the second quarter H. H. S. mounted a wonderful aerial attack, dazzling S. H. S.'s defense and resulting in a touchdown. Hicks getting out of Reid's passes and running 50 yards, crossing the line and getting shaken up considerably as he collided with a high board fence. H. H. S. failed to kick the goal. After H. H. S. had worked the ball down to the 20-yard line Adams called Reid back for a place kick. He made a beautiful kick. This took the whole crowd by surprise, as this is a play that is very seldom worked successfully by high school teams. The passing combination, Adams to Reid, was near the perfection and they used it many times successfully. The H. H. S. team has improved very much since last season, and the credit may rightfully be given to the splendid work of Coach White.

He has been engaged in the real estate business in Paris but made his home in Lexington, from there he made trips to Paris where his son, William, conducts the business. Big Land Suit in Jessamine

Mrs. Nannie B. Campbell, widow of H. B. Campbell, has filed suit in the Jessamine circuit court thru her attorneys, Bronaugh & Bronaugh, of Nicholasville, against W. R. Underwood and E. R. Little to have her lien enforced on the 266 acre tract of land located on the Glass Mill turnpike, which was bought by W. R. Underwood, March 1917.

The plaintiff states that the consideration for the land was $57,190 and that $5,000 was paid in cash and, for the balance of the consideration W. R. Underwood executed five promissory notes for $10,438 each, that the first note due one year from that date has been paid, and the remaining four notes of the same amount have not been paid, or the interest except to March 24, 1920. The land was resold by Mr. Underwood to E. R. Little, who, it is said, assumed all of the unpaid purchase money, the notes of which were executed by Mr. Underwood to H. B. Campbell, deceased.

GIRL'S MURDERER KILLS POLICEMAN

(By Associated Press)
Vineland, N. J., Oct. 19.—Louis Lively shot a policeman here today while resisting arrest on a charge of killing a white girl at East Morristown last spring. Lively, who has been wandering over the country since the crime was committed, returned and was recognized by the officer, who sought to arrest him. Lively shot him through the breast. Lively, officers say, confessed he slew Marilda Russo, 7, and her body is to bits and buried them. Preliminary have been taken to guard the prisoner.

U. K. SOPHS TOO HEAVY FOR EASTERN

The University of Kentucky Sophmores invaded the Eastern Normal Tuesday afternoon and carried off the honors in a pigskin battle by a score of 20 to 0. The enemy outweighed the locals a great deal, but were held to a scoreless tie the first half. The weight told in the last half, however, and the U. K. Sophs carried the ball over the line three times. Some had fumbles by Eastern, especially Berman, but the figure larger against Eastern. Under shadow of the goal posts the Normal captain fumbled the ball and put the Lexington invader in a position to score. The first half was hard fought to the end, the ball being in Eastern's territory most of the time. The only gains were around the ends, as the line was too heavy for much shuffling.

A bright spot in the game was a 70 yard run on the part of Underwood, Soph half. He managed to get through the line, he some fine dodging and got away from Bryan, who was hot on his heels. Bryan is one of the Normal's fastest men and it was quite a feat for Underwood to give him the dust.

The first of the Kentucky classmen's touchdowns came in the third quarter, due to hard running. The locals held the Sophs on their three yard line and pinned to their 30 yard line. The Sophs immediately got busy and carried the ball within striking distance of the goal where the ball was given to Straus. He carried the ball across with a mighty effort for the first score against Eastern. Hart kicked goal, making the score 7 to 0 in the Sophs' favor.

The second touchdown was the result of the long run by Underwood. Hart missed goal.

The back from the University managed to shove across another touchdown in the last few minutes of play on straight football. Bayless carrying the ball across, Hart kicked goal.

The U. K. Sophmores were penalized more than the locals, due to dirty work, such as slugging and kicking.

Coch Hembree's men play at Cumberland College next Saturday.

KENTUCKY WAR HERO IN BAD CONDITION

Sergt. Willie Sandlin Comes Here
From Leslie County For Medical Examination

Sergeant Willie Sandlin, of Hyden, Leslie county, next to Sergeant York, the outstanding hero of the world war, has a severe affection of the lungs as a result of German gas encountered in the Argonne woods battles, where he so greatly distinguished himself. Sandlin came to Richmond Monday for examination by local government physicians. They found that his lungs are in bad shape, they say. Full report was made of his condition, which goes to Washington for action.

Sandlin is a very modest young man and would have little to say about his exploits. He captured three German machine guns in one day and is said to have accounted for about 24 enemy soldiers at the same time. He is a veteran of the service, having served altogether six years in the army. When questioned about his exploits by the physicians here, he would say little, but waved them aside. He had to bring his discharge papers along and a glance at them showed that he won the French cross de Guerre, the Medal Militaire, and was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, the highest decoration and honor that can be conferred by the United States.

"Taking the Schools Out of Politics" in Ohio

By a vote of more than three to one, the state of Indiana a few weeks ago rejected the proposition to make the office of State School Superintendent appointive instead of elective.

We reprint herewith a letter the editor of the News has received from Mr. A. P. Sandles, of Columbus, O., relative to the experience of the state of Ohio with the same kind of constitutional provision as that proposed in Kentucky. Mr. Sandles is editor of the Rural Welfare Department of the Toledo Blade, and he is one of the most conservative and best informed men of his state. He resides at Columbus, the capital of Ohio, where he has an excellent opportunity to observe the operations of the law. Mr. Sandles writes:

"Received your recent date advising that your state has at issue a constitutional amendment which if adopted, will take from the people the right to elect your State Superintendent of Public Instruction and vest in your governor the power to appoint such superintendent.

You ask what effect such action has had in Ohio. Ten years ago Ohio adopted such an amendment. The plea was made that this would take the office out of politics. It has not done so. The governor always appoints a man of his own political faith.

Thirty-four states in the Union elect the State School Superintendent. In only six states the governor appointed. In eight states the school head is selected by a board or commission.

In Ohio belief is quite general that officials who shape our school policy and educational sentiment should be responsive to the people rather than to the one man who appoints.

Recently Indiana decisively defeated this amendment.

Everywhere there is reaction against centralizing power. There is decided protest against further surrender of Home Rule rights and locating in state and national capitals the authority which the themselves are fully competent to use. Respectfully, A. P. Sandles."

Mr. Sandles says the amendment has been a failure in his state, as the office is as much in politics now as it was under the elective system by the people. If adopted this plan would be just as much of a failure in Kentucky as it has been in Ohio. It will be a political asset of the governor to help him be elected to the United States Senate or to other positions. We will have a democratic State Superintendent when we have a Democratic Governor, and a Republican Superintendent when we have a Republican governor.

There is no reason why the people should by their votes in November surrender a constitutional right to some Board appointed by the governor. If they are qualified to elect a governor they are certainly qualified to elect any subordinate officer to

CHURCH A POWER AGAINST WAR

Speaker Tells Methodist Women It Has Great Opportunity—Some Reports

(By Associated Press)

Providence, R. I., Oct. 19.—The Christian church, comprising all denominations, has unrivaled means of using its power against war, Mrs. George O. Robinson, of Pasadena, California, told the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist church at its annual meeting here today.

"Its breadth of organization, its ability to reach large masses; from the pulpit and to secure formal resolutions from all varieties of mass bodies through its laymen and its preachers, its weighty influence—all give to the Christian church in America such an opportunity as has never before presented itself," Mrs. Robinson said.

"Concerted action on its part will convince the world that the Christian church is impregnable, founded upon the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the teachings of Christ."

"Think of the influence such a mass movement of the Christian people here in America would have upon the people of other nations and nations. Everywhere we should find that our action had given encouragement to the peoples of all lands—such encouragement as would produce results that statesmen would be obliged to heed."

"Leaders of American Christianity, help us each to count on in seeing and using the greatest opportunity ever presented to the Christian church."

Some of Church's Great Work

Activities of Methodist women in the home mission field increased substantially last year, Mrs. Mary L. Woodruff, of Alameda, N. J., corresponding secretary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, told the society at the opening of its annual meeting here today.

Membership gained 6,654 the past year, Mrs. Woodruff noted, reaching a total of 428,159. The largest gain was in the children's department, which increased 32,862 and now shows a membership of 115,888.

Total forces in the field number 1,073, composed of 550 missionaries, 419 deaconesses, 68 unlicensed deaconesses, and 36 associated workers. Students in homes and schools added 6,841.

Work for soldiers and sailors is being continued at Portsmouth, N. H., Pointville, N. J., Honolulu, Corvallis, Ore., Camp Funston, Kansas, and at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis. New buildings are planned for a negro orphanage at Baldwin, Lo., where a day school is now in operation.

Additional repairs and equipment on 40 buildings cost $121,390. The department of temperance sent out 636,000 pages of literature.

Total receipts for the year amounted to $2,717,563.31. Mrs. Ward Platt, of East Aurora, N. Y., treasurer of the society, reported today. This is an increase over the previous year of $423,768. Expenditures were $2,720,848. Included in the receipts were 15,116,500 pennies, collected in small paper boxes.

Ohio Man Lost a Year On Account of Stomach Trouble—Is Now Well and Strong

"Only a man who has to work for a living knows what it means to get back on the job after not hitting a lick of work for a whole year. I lost twelve months straight time on account of stomach trouble. One of the worst cases I guess any man ever had. Tanlac not only made me a well man again but built me up 19 pounds in weight. I am writing all my friends in other cities to tell them of the wonderful news."

The above statement was made by George B. Lowe, well known employee of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, living at 451 McGowan street, Akron, O.

Tanlac is sold in Richmond by Stockton and Son, and leading druggists.

Stories of Great Scouts

By Elmo Scott Watson

© Western Newspaper Union.
SIMON KENTON, THE AMERICAN MAZEPPA

Second only to the name of Daniel Boone—whose life he once saved—is written in the annals of Kentucky the name of Simon Kenton. Kenton was a Virginian who served as a scout in Lord Dunmore's war shortly before the outbreak of the Revolution and who crossed over the mountains into the "Dark and Bloody Ground" of Kentucky in search of adventure. His exploits there soon won for him the appellation of "the Indian king" and no less than eight times he was captured by them and sentenced to death.

In 1778 Kenton with two companions went north into Ohio to spy upon a tribe at war with the whites. While returning, they came upon a herd of Indian horses. The Kentonians resolved to take some of the animals along as trophies of the successful expedition. The Indians quickly discovered the theft and overtook the scout just before they crossed the Ohio river.

One of the Kentonians was killed, another escaped but Kenton was taken prisoner. "You stole Indian horses," they taunted him. "All right, we give you back on him!"

So they tied the scout on a wild young horse and set it free in the forest. He finally was taken from the horse's back more dead than alive.

At the first village the Indians reached, they condemned the scout to run the gantlet. When the signal was given, Kenton sprang through the line of warriors, armed with clubs and hatchets, and reached the comfort house, his goal, almost untouched. Near Zanesfield preparations were made to burn him at the stake, but the arrival of Simon Girty, the "white renegade," who recognized Kenton as an old friend, saved him.

His freedom was short-lived. Three weeks later the Indians again voted to put him to death. Again he was saved by a friend—Chief Logan, the noted orator of the Cayugas. When the Saukoy towns were reached, the Indians held a council and once more decreed the death penalty. Kenton was tied to the stake. Just as the torch was being applied, a British oficer appeared and demanded the surrender of their prisoner to his commander at Detroit.

Kenton was kept captive in Detroit until 1779, when through the aid of an Indian trader's wife he escaped to Kentucky where he died in 1836.

The foolish man who built his house on the sand—

He gave an example in folly which anybody can understand.

It isn't so easy, however, to sense the meaning of trying to build the body on foods which lack essential nourishment.

Here, again, is a foundation of sand which gives 'way when the test comes.

Many a food that tastes good lacks the necessary of nourishment to equal its taste. Thus it tempts the appetite into mistakes that often are costly.

Grape-Nuts is a food which helps build bodily endurance for life's stress and storm. The full nourishment of wheat and malted barley, together with the vital mineral salts so necessary to bone structure and red blood corpuscles, with phosphates for the brain, is retained in Grape-Nuts. The long baking process by which Grape-Nuts is made gives the food a natural sweetness and an unusual ease of digestibility and assimilation.

Served with cream or milk, Grape-Nuts is fully nourishing, and whether eaten as a cereal at breakfast or lunch, or made into a pudding for dinner. Grape-Nuts has a particular delight for the appetite. Sold by grocers.

AMERICAN FOOD SHIP SAVES 18,000 BABES FROM STARVATION

Heroic Yankee Women Risk
Lives to Rescue Children, in Service of Near East Relief

Constantinople.—How the prompt action of Charles V. Vickrey, General Secretary of the Near East Relief, and Harold C. Jaquith, representative of that American relief organization in Constantinople, saved the lives of 18,000 orphan children and seven American relief workers in Alexandropol, Armenia, is what all the representatives of the Allied nations in Constantinople are applauding today.

For five years the Near East Relief organization had built up a work of mercy throughout the former Turkish Empire and Transcaucasia, to a point where 54,000 little children were being housed, clothed, fed, given medical attendance and taught, and over 50,000 others being supplied with food. Then suddenly, on February 5, last, these children, the cable reports of renewed fighting in Armenia and Transcaucasia, alone 75,818 of these little ones were located under the protection of the Near East Relief. Consular representatives left the country. All foreigners piled onto ships and fled. War threatened to scatter the work and render vain the long, patient efforts of the Near East Relief to salvage a whole nation's children.

But the American men and women who had cared for these little ones were undismayed. They refused to leave under bombardment, with hostile armies sweeping through the streets, where the Near East Relief's great orphanages had been established, with all supplies cut off and no communication with the outside world, or with that far American homeland whose representatives these heroic men and women are, they stuck to their posts. The last food from America had come in on November 6, 1920.

It was not until four months later that the new governments of the Transcaucasian states were established on a solid basis. But famine threatened. An appeal was made to American philanthropy: "Critical need for food products in Caucasus," the cable read. "No limit to need in Armenia. New government promises better facilities for relief activity than former government." A few days later, a further plea followed: "Total orphans in Alexandropol 18,000. Supplies in Alexandropol allow half-rations. April 2nd to 25th. After May 1st, nothing."

But this splendid American relief organization had no waited. It was already on the way. On April 22, Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of the Near East Relief, cabled: "Expect ship first week in May: 1,000 tons rice, 1,000 tons wheat flour, 600 tons cornmeal, corn flour, hominy; 30 tons sugar; 500 tons beans; 5,000 cases corn syrup, from New York and New Orleans direct to Batum. Additional 1,000 tons wheat flour from Pacific Coast June 1st."

The seven American relief workers in charge of the 18,000 little ones in Alexandropol cabled a last appeal: "No food at any price. Four days more and we are finished." But when the first relief ship, "Queen" entered the deserted harbor of Batum on May 1, there were just ten bags of flour left. The food ship had come in time. America had saved the day—and the 38,000 little orphan children, who had suffered so much and lost so much in their short, war-clouded lives, never knew that gaunt hunger in the robes of death had knocked at the door of the orphanage at Alexandropol—and that America had thrust the bony hand away.

Mushrooms four feet across and weighing ten pounds each are on exhibition at Paris.

More than nine million automobiles and trucks will be available to meet the railroad strike.

SEEK MYSTERY OF CAHOKIA MOUND

Prof. W. K. Moorehead to Open
Illinois Relic of Prehistoric Inhabitants.

WORK SIMILAR TO THE AZTECS

Exploration May Develop Information of Surpassing Interest to Archaeologists—Greatest Structure of Kind in World.

East St. Louis, Ill.—Probing of the mystery of the great Cahokia mound near this city has been begun by Prof. Warren K. Moorehead of Andover, Mass., upon the suggestion of the Smithsonian Institution, universities and scientific associations. With a corps of experienced assistants he will open Cahokia and the chain of 72 other mounds in Madison and St. Clair counties which furnish the most remarkable memorials of North American prehistory. Exploration may develop information of surpassing interest and value to archaeologists.

Covering 16 acres, the Cahokia mound, which is 100 feet in height, is the greatest structure of its kind in the world. It was supposedly a religious temple. Archaeologists estimate that the settlement of the mound builders numbered not less than 150,000 inhabitants at the height of its prosperity.

At First Agriculturists.
The size of the settlement site, as it can be imagined from the ruins the agricultural type of much of the work in that, such as the great spades and hoes almost peculiar to that vicinity, and the rich alluvial bottom land combine to show that the Cahokians were probably at first agriculturists. They probably fished and hunted to some extent, but they doubtless depended for their subsistence upon their labor in the field and their staple food was unquestionably corn.

It is believed that the appearance of the bluen resulted in the abandonment of agriculture and the development of the chase, with the result that the community became nomadic and gradually crumbled and dispersed to the four quarters of the continent. Believed to Have Come From Mexico.

The preponderance of evidence so far discovered is that the people of Cahokia were worshippers of the sun. There is so much about Cahokia that is similar to the works of the Aztecs that the conviction is forced upon the student that it was from Mexico that these people came to the Mississippi valley, bringing their religion, their priesthood, their corn, their mode of life and their middle order of primitive civilization.

Even if the exploration of the Cahokia mound is not followed by any important discoveries, it is certain that the control by the state will be given greater momentum when the people of Illinois are brought to a realization of its archaeological value.

Up to the present time the Cahokia and other table-like mounds in the group have not been explored much more deeply than the plow and spade can work.

FINDS COAL VEIN IN STREET

Property Owner Can't Mine It for Fear of Destroying Buildings of Great Value.

Pottsville, Pa.—A rich vein of coal, two feet thick, was found under the curbstone of Harry Lord of North Third street. There is no doubt that the vein contains thousands of tons of coal, but it cannot be mined, as such action would weaken buildings of great value.

The excavation made, by which the coal was discovered, was for the purpose of placing a gasoline tank under the pavement.

Mr. Lord took a ton of the vein and found it of good burning quality. The find is near the court house and shows, as has been believed, that large quantities of coal are immediately underneath the Schuylkill county temple of justice.

KING BARS CREAM HORSES

Famous British Hackneys Grow Too
Small, Owing to Inbreeding.

London.—The famous six cream ponies, which were formerly part of the state pageantry of London, will never appear again drawing the royal coach through the London streets, as, owing to inbreeding, the stock has grown too small for ceremonial purposes and their places have been taken by the "royal blacks."

The stock of creams, however, will not be allowed to die out altogether, for the king has presented them to the army council, and in future they will be used as cavalry drum horses.

SISTER NATION WANTS OWN FLAG

Canada With Unrepresentative Ensign Seeks Ideas for Proper Heraldic Device.

MAPLE LEAF IN HIGH FAVOR

Emblem Now in Use Unauthorized and No Longer Represents Canada as Five of Its Provinces Are Not Included.

Toronto.—Canada is a "nation" but it has no flag. Herein it is unique among all nations.

A so-called Canadian flag is in use, but its use is unauthorized and it no longer represents Canada. It is the red ensign of the British mercantile marine with the coat of arms of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick in a quartered shield on the field of the flag.

This flag, by warrant dated February 2, 1892, was authorized by the British admiralty "to be used on board vessels registered in the Dominion." This limits its domain to Canadian merchant ships, as no authorization was given to fly it on shore. When it is flown on land, it is out of its jurisdiction. In any case, it has not been formally adopted by the Canadian people and it now has decided limitations.

Its shield contains the devices of only four of the nine provinces which now form the Dominion of Canada. The four coats of arms make an almost indecipherable emblem owing to the crowding of their devices into so small a space. If the emblem was brought up to date by adding the arms of the other five provinces, the result would be a hopeless confusion of armorial bearings; the significance would be destroyed and the flag be lacking in distinction and beauty.

Australia's Flag.

Australia, when it organized its commonwealth, chose a flag from 39,000 competing designs. It has the Union Jack in the upper left hand corner, with the constellation of the southern cross, white on a blue field.

New Zealand also has a flag. It is also based on the southern cross constellation, red stars on a blue field. There are only four stars compared with Australia's six.

As for South Africa, Premier Smuts has declared that she too will have her own national flag.

The Manitoba Free Press, speaking for a province not represented in the present unofficial Canadian ensign, is calling for a new Canadian flag and has received hundreds of proposed designs. The Free Press itself puts forward an adoption of the most prominent feature of northern skies as an appropriate design. "Certainly," the "dipper" and the pole star are not without some symbolism to most Canadians. The dipper, the Free Press says, "is the conspicuous constellation of our Canadian heavens, circling slowly around the steadfast pole star; it lights up the night sky over the Atlantic provinces and over the Pacific slopes of British Columbia; it circles above the night silence of the Western prairies; it can be seen by the trapper in the woods of the Northwest territories; by the settler on his homestead, by the city dweller high above the glitter of his lamp-lit streets, the most distinctive constellation of the northern hemisphere." The dipper and the pole star, it thinks, look as though they were a great heraldic emblem on the dark field of the Canadian night sky, and it seems natural to take them down and emblazon them on the white field of a flag for the young Canadian nation. The only objection would come from those who objected to Kipling's "Our Lady of the Snows."

Favor Maple Leaf.

Most suggestions involve some use of the maple leaf.

Nationhood flowers in a flag, thinks the Free Press, which argues the case this way: "Canada has one of the great geographical surfaces of the world. Canada has a vigorous, thriving and enterprising people. Canada sent 600,000 men to the war, good soldiers who fought with distinction and put lustre on the Canadian name; Canada has a rich tradition behind her; her laws and system of government are rooted in the principles of liberty and justice; the great highway of national expansion is opening before Canada, and as a nation she is preparing to walk in it; Canadian status and nationality have never been so universally admitted as they are today, and despite all this, Canada lacks the distinctive badge of nationality possessed by even the smallest and humblest nation—a national flag. The national flag stands for something vital in the nation. National flags are emblems around which nations rally. The crosses on the Union Jack, the lion of Scotland, the lion of England, the Irish harp, the stars and bars of 'Old Glory' are of a piece with the national life out of which they merge."

Fewer Children in Austria.

Vienna.—Curious freaks of population are shown by the details of the latest Austrian census. For instance, there are 200,000 fewer children under 10 years of age in the country than in 1910, while the number of men between 40 and 60 has increased by 120,000. It is explained by the fact that adult men survived the privations of the last three or four years while children perished.
